The Final Battle

Ash's Final Battle A Poke'mon story by Jeffrey Lee-Ming Hsu

Before you read anything else I want to tell you that my stories have nothing in common with my other storries unless said, also I don't own any of the characters(Ash, Gary, Lance, etc.).

This story is like in the game and doesn't have Misty or Brock in the story.

Ash had prepared for this battle. He was fighting Lance, the final trainer of the Elite Four. Ash was down to his Nidoking and his Venusaur. Lance had six poke'balls and he was down to his aerodactyl and one last reserve poke'mon. The aerodactyl had just knocked out Ash's third poke'mon Rapidash with hyper beam. "Nidoking, go!" Ash flung his red and white poke'ball in the air and as it crashed upon the ground, Nidoking was released. "Aerodactyl, hyper beam," Lance commanded. From the opening of the mouth of Aerodactyl, energy gathered. "Horn drill!" Ash was desperate to win, he had gone throughout the world trying to get only the most powerful poke'mon. Nidoking charged at Aerodactyl with the horn on top of the mouth turning at a frighting speed. Now a huge globe of energy was gathered at the mouth of Aerodactyl, finally it released the power which destroyed the tiles on the floor just missing Nidoking. Nidoking had it's chance now, Aerodactyl was open for the kill. It charged making it's horn turn faster and faster as it gained on the flying poke'mon. Nidoking struck the stomach of Aerodactyle with it's horn and opened to wound. Aerodactyl screeched as it was wounded and plumeted to the ground uncounsious and bleeding. "No, Aerodactyl!" Lance just stared at his loss as he retreated his wounded aerodactyl. "I didn't think of using this unruly poke'mon but you give me no choice. Dragonite, go!" From the poke'ball that Lance released from his hand was the biggest poke'mon Ash had seen. He drew out his poke'dex and looked up the poke'mon. From the poke'dex were two sentences spoken about dragonites. "Dragonite, A dragon poke'mon that few have seen throughout their lives. No more data has been recorded." "Dragonite, go!" "Nidoking, attack!" Quickly, the dragonite had charged up the hyper beam in his mouth but before there was much time to up the power of the beam, Ash's nidoking made a failed attempt to knock it out with horn drill. The beam fired from Dragonite. It drilled a wound into Nidoking and when the blast had reached into the flesh of Nidoking, the blast exploded. Nidoking was now in a near fatal status. "Nidoking, return!" Ash had only one poke'mon left and that was Venusaur, slow but strong. Once again they were waging war. One on one. Final match before Ash was either a poke'mon master or a 'loser' as Gary would put it. "Solar beam!" "Stomp that weed Dragonite!" Those were the calls of the bloodthirsty trainers. Doing anything to best the other. As the giant lazy living plant began to gather solar energy, the legendary dragon stepped on Venusaur. Amazingly enough, the giant foot of Dragonit had not crushed it's target. Soon the Venusaur released the schorching heat of the light which burned the foot of Lance's poke'mon. That attack had caused Dragonite to back off. When it did, Venusaur sprayed the rest of it's solar power onto Dragonite knocking the wind out of it. "All right! I won, I'm now the greatest poke'mon trainer in the world!" "I can't believe it, I lost. Ash, I'm not your final opponent, you still have one more, one who has already defeated my poke'mon. His name is...." For everyone who has played the game poke'mon will know who the final opponent for Ash is. I might not continue this story unless people want to read my next part. Just to tell you, I'm a pretty slow writer so don't expect anything coming out soon.
